Description	Gudi Padwa Utsav, celebrated as the Marathi New Year, is a vibrant and auspicious festival marking the beginning of the traditional Hindu lunar calendar in Maharashtra, India. The festivities typically occur in March or April, symbolizing the arrival of spring and the agricultural harvest season. The highlight of the celebration is the hoisting of the Gudi, a decorated pole with a bright silk cloth, neem leaves, and a copper or silver vessel, outside homes. This ritual is believed to bring prosperity and good fortune. People dress in traditional attire, exchange sweets, and visit temples to seek blessings. The day is also marked by cultural events, processions, and community gatherings. Delicious Maharashtrian dishes, especially puran poli and shrikhand, add flavor to the festivities. Gudi Padwa Utsav is not only a time for joyous celebrations but also a reflection of the rich cultural heritage and deep-rooted traditions that bind the Marathi community together, fostering a sense of unity and renewal as they welcome the New Year.
